Accountability

The use of this service (“www.volume.cc”) is provided at your own risk. It is provided on an “as is” and “as available” basis. No warranty, express or implied, as to the quality, content and availability or fitness for a specific purpose is given.

We are not liable for any loss or damage, whether contracted, in tort, breach of statutory duty even if foreseeable, arising under or in connection with:

- Use of or inability to use our web service
- Use of or reliance on any contents produced by our web service
- Loss of profits, sales, business or revenue
- Interruption of business linked to our web service
- Loss of anticipated savings
- Loss of business opportunities, goodwill or reputation
- Any indirect or consequential losses or damages

Availability

We endeavour to keep the web service live 24/7. This is to support communities internationally. However no liability exists should the service become unresponsive or unavailable. In the scenario where the data need be available and there is a small chance connectivity to our service could be problematic, we encourage you to use the print facility.

Changes

We may revise these terms and conditions. You are encouraged to regularly check this web resource for updates and take notes of changes that may occur in the future, as they are legally binding. Some of the provisions within these terms may also be superseded by provisions or notices published elsewhere on our web service. In most cases, we will use discretion and exercise common sense.

Copyright

No portion of this web site may be distributed or reproduced by any means without written permission obtained from <https://www.volume.cc/contact/>.

Disputes

In the case of any dispute, we will always encourage common sense to resolve any issue.

Fair Use of Information

We are the owner and licensee of all intellectual property rights on our web service. The material published on it, these works are protected by copyright laws and treaties around the world. All such rights are reserved.

We allow you to print off copies, and make download extracts, of any page(s) from our web service for your personal use. You are allowed to draw the attention of others from within your organisation to content published on this web service.

Our status (including that of contributors) as the authors of content must always be acknowledged. You must not use any part of our service for commercial purposes without obtaining a license to do so from us or our licensors.

Should these terms be breached, your right to use our service will cease immediately. You must also return and destroy any copies of the materials you have made from our service if you breach these terms.

Linking to our Web Service

You may indeed link to our home page, provided that you do so in a way which can be justified as fair, legal and does not damage our reputation or take advantage of it. You must not publish a link which could suggest a form of association, approval, endorsement or affiliation on our part when none exists. An exception applies if you have obtained written permission from us.

Our web service must not be framed by any other service.

Material Upload Rights

Any of the content you upload to our web services, such as the information keyed in through submission forms and textual dialogs will be considered non-confidential and non-proprietary. You retain all the ownership rights of your content albeit you grant us a full license to use, store and copy this content. This includes the right to distribute and make it available to affiliates. An exception applies if you marked data contents "private" meaning we will refrain from publishing any applicable information through our global protocol and API.

Precision of Data Delivery

The service ("volume.cc") delivers data digitally to recipients globally. Whilst we the ("engineers") work hard to ensure it is indeed accurate, we offer no guarantee and you as an engineer are encouraged to exercise caution as you should on any work task. In the unlikely event you encounter an issue, we strongly encourage you to contact us.

Therefore we advise you that the information on this website is for general information only. You should always seek professional and specialist advice before undertaking any activity where the data input need be critically evaluated for health and safety purposes. Often in engineering, there are decisions made which may only be applicable to the context of a specific scenario and thus, it is indeed not general purpose.

Privacy Policy

You may review our existing privacy policy which can be found at the following url:
